

Product Sheet - Education

For over 27 years, iCS Communications has been supplying the education market with effective telecoms solutions. We are committed to giving our customers the best service possible, giving high level technical expertise with a friendly face.

Why chose iCS Communications

Reliable, efficient telecoms services are critical to schools, because they impact on both teaching and administrative activities. One of the biggest challenges facing many schools is ensuring effective communication between teachers, parents and pupils.

During a period of significant change and mounting financial pressures, schools are changing the way they operate to maintain and improve education services. An up-to-date communication system is more important than ever. Telecoms technology is developing and changing quickly, raising issues of obsolescence and compatibility - as well as being the best fit for the school.

iCS Communications is a recognised specialist in education sector telephony and cloud solutions. We work with many schools nationwide and have a dedicated education team who can advise you on the latest technology with invaluable benefits to your school. We already work with many independent, public, academy and private schools and several Councils.
